Hand-knotted

Hand-knotting is a traditional rug-making technique that has been practiced for centuries, producing some of the most durable and sophisticated rugs in the world. This meticulous process involves artisans tying individual knots to create the rug's pile, resulting in unique, high-quality pieces.

Hand-knotted rugs are a fusion of artistry, tradition, and durability. Their complex designs and robust construction make them a valuable addition to any space, reflecting a rich cultural heritage and a commitment to craftsmanship.

Hand-tufted

Hand-tufted carpets are made by pushing yarn into a canvas with a tufting gun, creating stylish and durable designs. They are more affordable than hand-knotted rugs while still offering a luxurious look.

Available in various colors and materials, they add warmth and elegance to any space.

Hand-woven

Hand-loomed rugs are meticulously crafted textiles produced using traditional weaving techniques on manually operated looms.

This traditional technique allows for a variety of textures and patterns. While they can feature loop, cut, or mixed piles, their designs are typically less complicated due to the weaving technique's constraints. Their artisanal quality adds warmth and character to any space.

Hand-border

Hand-border carpets are finished with a carefully stitched border, adding a refined and elegant touch. This technique enhances the rug's durability and creates a polished, custom look.

Ideal for both classic and modern interiors, they bring a sense of sophistication to any space.

Outdoor rugs

Outdoor carpets are designed to withstand weather conditions while adding style and comfort to outdoor spaces. Made from durable, moisture-resistant materials, they are easy to clean and maintain.

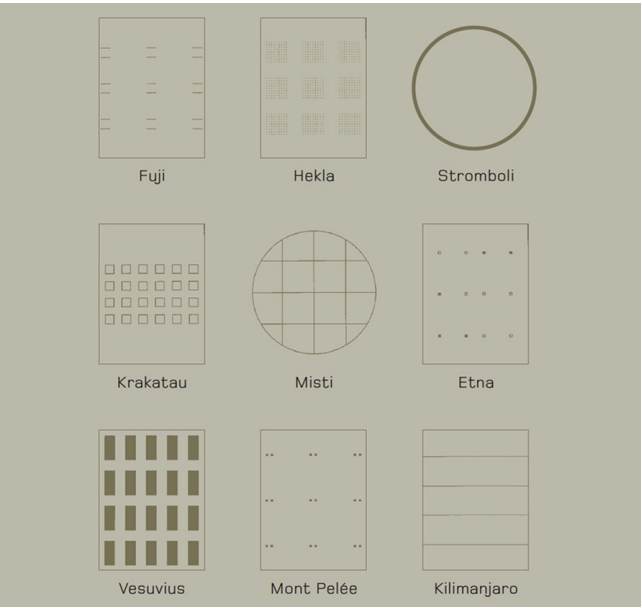

Available in various designs and colors, they enhance patios, balconies, pool area's and gardens. Mostly placed outside, our outdoor rugs are also seen in kitchens and lobby's.
